Extra financial security for your partner

Dear Sir, Madam,

A complete pension package has been arranged with PME pension fund. For instance, a pension has been arranged for your partner, which your partner will receive if you pass away. Is the partner's pension not enough for your partner to make ends meet? Then you can insure a 'Surviving Dependents Act' shortfall pension. This insurance provides for extra partner's pension. Your partner receives the extra partner's pension until they start to receive the 'AOW' state pension.

How high is the partner's pension?

You can see the level of the partner's pension in My PME. Based on that, you can decide together whether it is necessary to insure for extra partner's pension. You can also visit: www.mijnpensioenoverzicht.nl to see whether your partner is entitled to partner's pension from any other pension funds.

Voluntary extra partner's pension

You decide for yourself whether or not to take out this extra insurance. Does your partner have a low income or no income? Or is the partner's pension for your partner already (too) low? Then it may be wise to take out insurance for a Surviving Dependents Act shortfall pension.

Choose how much your partner receives if you pass away

You decide for yourself the extra amount that your partner receives following your death. You can choose from three amounts. A premium is payable for each amount. You can see the premiums that apply for 2021 on the form.

You pay via your employer

Your employer withholds the premium for the insurance from your gross salary every month.

Arrange the insurance quickly and easily online

You can arrange Surviving Dependents Act shortfall pension direct via PME's website. Log in on www.pmepensioen.nl/mijnpme and select 'Arrange directly'. That's how easy it is!

Or return your application within a month

Would you like to take out the insurance? Then select an amount, sign the form and send it back in the reply envelope. Or make a scan of the form and email it to www.pmepensioen.nl/email.
